LORENZ FIELD AT VALLEY STADIUM

Beavers Are At Home On One Of The Finest Pitches In The Nation

Lorenz Field at Valley Stadium opened in the fall of 1996

Oregon State's soccer teams play and practice on one of the finest pitches on the West Coast — Paul Lorenz Field at Patrick Wayne Valley Stadium. The facility opened in the fall of 1996.

Paul Lorenz Field at Patrick Wayne Valley Stadium is located a block southeast of Reser Stadium, on the south side of S.W. Western Boulevard between 15th Street and 26th Street. The complex also includes a practice field just south of the stadium.

The completely enclosed stadium features a sand-based field with underground drainage and irrigation. After a season of use, work was done in the spring and summer of 1997 to fine-tune the playing conditions on Paul Lorenz Field.

Patrick Wayne Valley Stadium seats 1,500 fans and has an enclosed press box on the west sideline and covered team benches on the east sideline. Parking is available on the east side of the stadium and on the south side behind the Oregon State Softball Complex.

Preliminary plans are underway to expand the facility in the future.

"It's one of the best soccer-specific stadiums in the western United States," said OSU head coach Dana Taylor, who has seen many of the nation's finest soccer facilities. "It's a beautiful sand-based field that rivals all the top fields in the country. It's a state-of-the-art facility with good sightlines."

Lights were added prior to the 2006 season, adding to the program's allure. Fans should find it easier to attend night games on weekdays, as opposed to the afternoon games of the past.

Patrick Wayne Valley Stadium is named for the late Patrick Wayne Valley. The former Oregon State football letterman and 1964 Rose Bowl team member drowned in 1969. Patrick Wayne Valley Stadium was originally the name of the former OSU track and field facility that was just west of the soccer field prior to the softball facility's completion.

Paul Lorenz Field is named for a major contributor to the soccer field. The former owner of L&H Grading in Salem provided equipment for earth moving, drainage and irrigation pipe. He also contributed labor for the building of the soccer field and the first rebuilding of the Tommy Prothro football practice fields.

OSU No Newcomer When It Comes To Soccer Tradition

Although soccer has only been a varsity sport at Oregon State since the fall of 1988, the sport has been played by both women and men on campus since the early 1900s.

Soccer began at Oregon Agricultural College as a men's intramural sport during the 1916-17 school year with more than 50 men competing under the direction of Prof. Charles Wiltshire and captain Neal Ford.

As a result of the large number of men participating, intercollegiate games were also arranged against the University of Oregon. These were the first intercollegiate soccer games in the region and the Beavers fell 4-0 and 2-0. Players were not awarded varsity letters, but the Orange yearbook reported that the men were given their class numerals by the Student Council.

Men's soccer continued as an intramural and club sport for most of the next seven decades and participated in a variety of regional leagues. From the mid-1960s through the mid-1970s, the Beavers regularly won championships in the Oregon Intercollegiate Soccer Association and played many homes in Parker Stadium.

Women's soccer was introduced in the fall of 1918 as a substitute for field hockey. Class teams were chosen "and each team put up a good battle, with the O.A.C. spirit," according to the Beaver yearbook. However, field hockey was back on campus the next year. By the late 1970s, women's soccer had returned as a club sport.

Both OSU's men's and women's clubs were members of the Northwest Colleges Soccer Conference and played against other clubs and NCAA and NAIA varsity squads.

In 1988, OSU elevated women's and men's soccer to varsity status and named Dave Oberbillig as its women's head coach and Jimmy Conway as its men's head coach. Both teams played independent schedules in 1988, then rejoined the NWCSO in 1989. Games were played on the Women's Building Field.

The men became part of the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation from 1992-99 before joining the Pac-10 Conference in 2000. The women moved to the Pac-10 Conference in 1993.
